For investors with high volatility tolerance looking for bond performance drivers at a time when yields are extremely low and subject to volatility spikes.

During periods of market volatility, Charles Zerah, Fund Manager of Carmignac P. Unconstrained Global Bond may:

Make its overall portfolio more resilient by reducing directional risk, lowering beta exposure to duration (or even being negative duration) and credit risk and tilting toward relative value opportunities

Seize opportunities that arise in volatile periods, providing debt capital to 'liquidity-hungry' issuers when they are most in need.

Why invest in the Fund now?

The decades-long secular decline in interest rates across developed countries, which has been a major boon to fixed income total returns over the years, appears to have reached its lower bound with 10-year US Treasury yields and 10-year German yields respectively reaching +0.6% and -0.4¹.

If yields did begin an upward trend, returns to bond investors would be materially adverse. Since most common Fixed Income benchmarks have durations over 8 years (for instance the JPMorgan GGB index has a duration of 8), it implies a negative price return of approximately -8% for every 1% increase in interest rates².

Our Unconstrained bond strategies like Carmignac P. Unconstrained Global Bond benefit from greater investment flexibility to defend against scenarios that are challenging for traditional Fixed Income Funds while potentially capitalizing on market shifts.

What are the main assets of the Fund?

Carmignac P. Unconstrained Global Bond is the “pioneer” in our unconstrained range, a philosophy à la Carmignac that relies on 3 pillars: flexibility, global approach and non-benchmarked management, shared among all our Fund Managers.

A wider modified duration bracket or the ability to take long or short positions on rate, credit and currency markets may help navigate a wider variety of market conditions relative to traditional strategies.
