Management Comments

The Fund underperformed its reference indicator. Emerging markets experienced mixed fortunes in April, in turn reflecting Sino-American customs offensives, sanctions on Russia and a sharp rise in the value of the dollar. In this context, our fixed income investments proved costly, with our positions on Russian and Brazilian inflation-linked bonds particularly detrimental. We also suffered from our allocation to Russian and South African government bonds. However, we benefitted from our allocation to Greek government bonds during the month.

Management Comments

Our equity investments weighed on performance. Our Eastern European stocks were down over April, especially in Russia (Yandex). Our Latin American holdings also proved costly, including positions in Argentina (Grupo Supervielle). In Asia, our Chinese (Tencent) and Taiwanese (Taiwan Semiconductor) technology stocks fell, but our investments in South Korea (Hyundai, Kangwon Land) and India (United Spirits) showed resilience, even posting gains. The Fund maintained a high level of equity exposure over April.
