Engagement objective(s)

In August 2022, before casting our vote at its Annual General Meeting (AGM), we reached out to the company to seek clarifications on its executive remuneration plan. The company's explanation led to a vote of support for the two remuneration resolutions² on the agenda of the AGM. We however cast a vote against one family representative sitting on the board of the company³ to signal our concerns around the low level of board independence. Following our vote, we engaged with the company to provide feedback on these two topics.

Engagement method

In September 2022, we held a videocall with the company's investor relations representatives.

Engagement summary

On executive remuneration, we asked for more transparency on the long-term incentive grants as well as more clarity around the various elements of the pay package. We highlighted to the company our expectation to see a clear link between the remuneration levels and the performance.

On board independence, the slow refreshment of the board means that only 29% of the board was considered independent⁴ at the date of the AGM. We consider this level to be low even for a controlled company where our expectation would be for 33% independence as a minimum⁵. We welcomed the presence of a woman on the board and asked the company that it continues to grow its gender diversity levels on the board. The company acknowledged our comments and explained that it is in the process of refreshing the board but that these changes take time.

Lastly, we discussed with the company our expectations around sustainability commitments and reporting. In particular, while we welcomed its ambitious carbon neutrality target by 2040, we asked them to provide a roadmap in next year's reporting. We found the company's disclosures on governance, environmental and social topics weak and asked the company for more transparency.

Outcome and next steps

Following the call and after reviewing the case with the lead investment analyst, we decided to downgrade the company's governance rating as well as its overall rating in our internal proprietary ESG scoring tool, START⁶ to reflect our assessment of the company's practices.

We will continue to monitor the evolution of the company's practices, especially around transparency and reporting.
